

Can I control the characteristics of the XML that is generated ?

Sunday, 04 February 2007

Last Updated Sunday, 04 February 2007

Yes, to a degree. All of the XML tag names and attribute names are constants specified in a DefaultXMLTags class that implements an XMLTags interface. There is a means to provide your own implementation of this interface, in which case you may select tag names and attribute names of your preference. Currently, there is no means to control other aspects of the generated XML.